CLOSING SPEECH

by

R. G. ISMAILOV
Chairman of the Symposium

Honorable Ladies and Gentlemen, dear Friends,

First of all, I wish to thank the representatives of UNIDO for making all necessary arrangements for the successful working of the Symposium.

I should like to thank all participants of this Symposium who have given time and effort to its organization and operation.

I hope that the results obtained and the relations among all participants were fruitful and they will help all participants in their work aimed at the development of petrochemical industries in their respective countries.

25 papers made by the participants from 36 countries give an idea of the activity of the Symposium.

The present situation and prospects of petrochemical industries have been discussed.

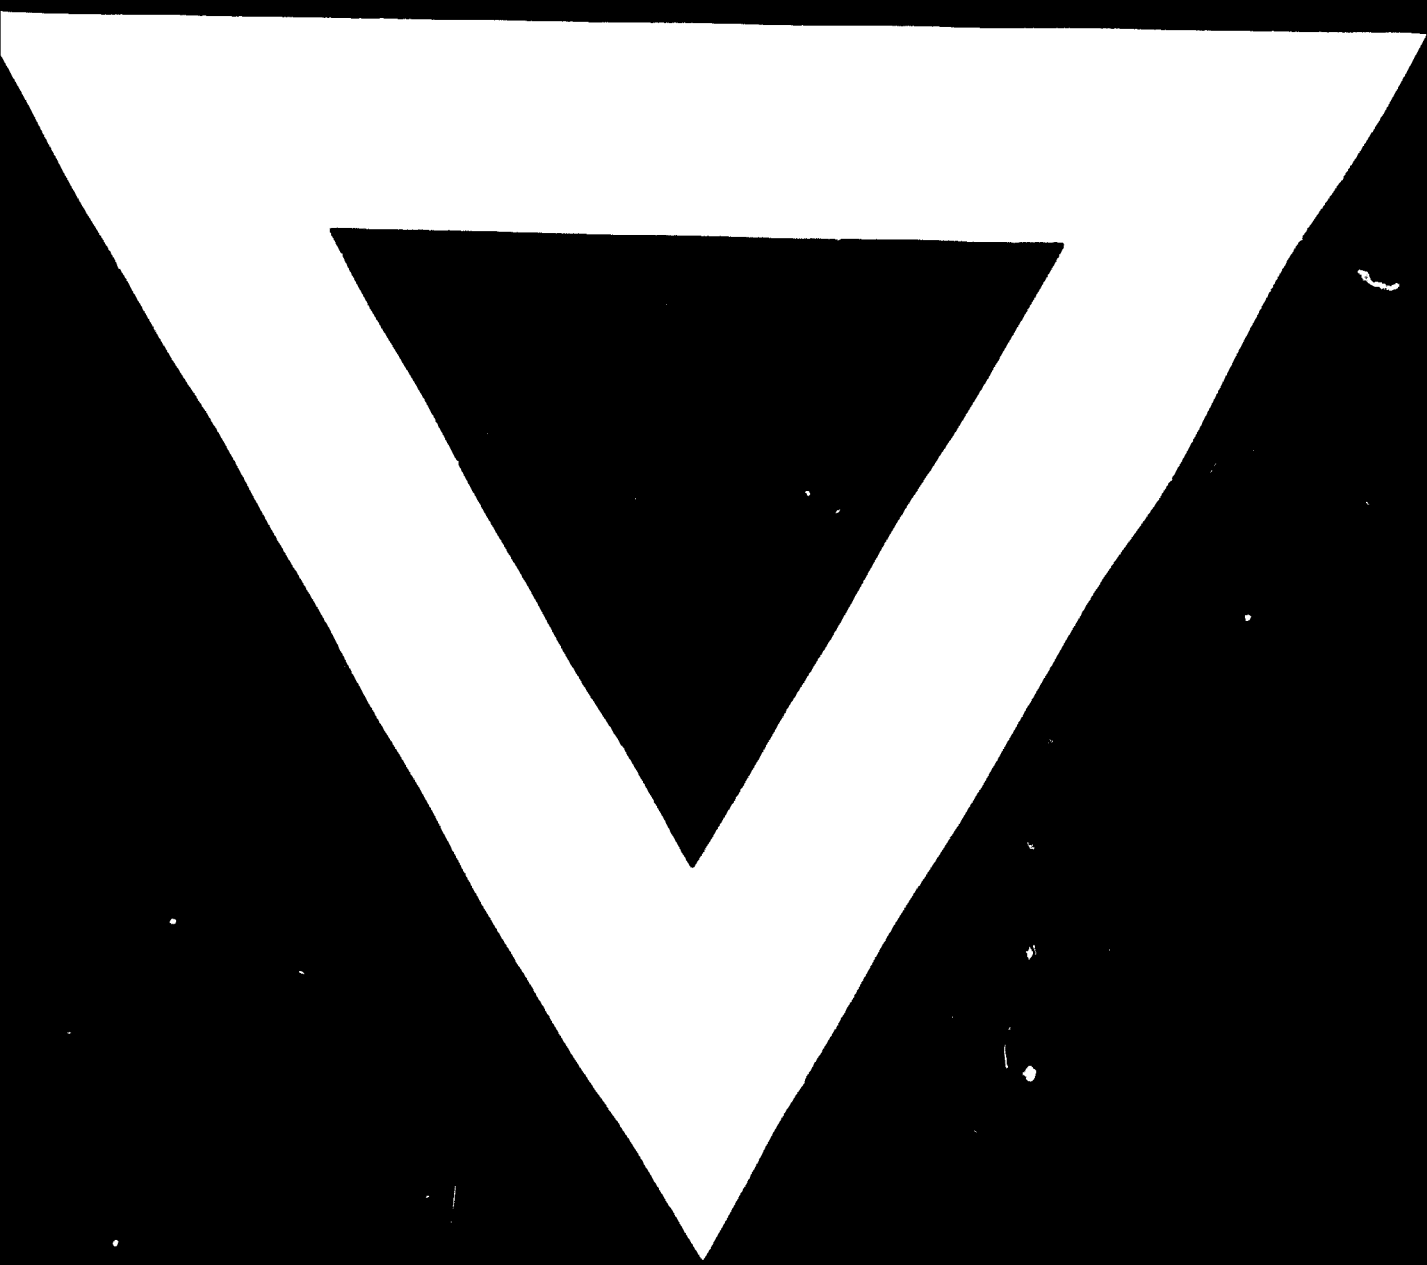

Every paper is certain to evoke considerable interest amongst scientists and specialists.

The participants of the Symposium had an opportunity to visit some petrochemical enterprises of Azerbaijan and scientific research institutes working in this field.

I hope the new personal contacts made will prove of real value.

In conclusion, I wish to thank once more all participants and the organizing staff and declare the Symposium closed.
