INTRODUCTION

The Secretariat of the United Nations Industrial Development Organization takes pleasure in presenting a directory of intergovernmental organizations at present co-operating with it.

The main aim of this directory is to introduce these organizations to each other so that organizations located in various continents become more familiar with each other's field of activity.

Contacts between these organizations, in the view of the Secretariat, will assist in eliminating any possible overlapping and/or duplication of activities. Furthermore, it will also provide a means for necessary economic integration both at regional and sub-regional levels.

Although UNIDO maintains good relations with more than a hundred intergovernmental organizations (other than those of the United Nations System) this directory contains only those organizations that are co-operating with the Secretariat. It is further hoped that after UNIDO becomes a specialized agency, more intergovernmental organizations would approach it to obtain observer status with the Industrial Development Board and/or to establish formal working arrangements with UNIDO.

This directory would be updated every two years, if necessary, to reflect the prevailing situation at that time.

Membership: All independent African States except the Republic of South Africa

Association with IDB: 1976

Instrument of co-operation with UNIDO: Co-operation Agreement 1983

Basic fields of activity: The aim of the Bank is to contribute to the economic and social development of its members, both individually and collectively. To this end the Bank assists the investment of public and private capital in Africa; uses its own resources for the granting or guaranteeing of loans or for investment; encourages private investments in member States; co-operates with member States for the better utilisation of their resources - by making their economies more complementary and by assisting harmonious expansion of their external trade; provides necessary technical assistance for the study, preparation, financing, and execution of development plans and projects. The Bank can grant direct or indirect credit. It can operate alone or in conjunction with other institutions or sources of finance:

Areas identified for co-operation with UNIDO:

- a) Identification, preparation and appraisal of industrial investment projects for which financing through the Bank has been requested;
- b) Evaluation of ongoing and completed projects financed by the Bank;
- c) Promotion of investment projects identified and prepared with a view to finding suitable partners in industrialized countries;
- d) Study of requests for financing submitted to the Bank and assistance in locating additional sources of finance (for "co-financing" arrangements) for industrial projects;
- e) Execution of industrial projects in the context of technical assistance programmes, especially those mentioned under a) and b) above;
- f) Training of professional and technical personnel to familiarize them with Bank programmes, as well as arrangement of seminars and courses relating to industrial activities;
- g) Preparation, execution of back-stopping of sectoral and industrial studies concerning individual countries, regions or subregions;
- h) Promotion of industrial co-operation and exchange of information among developing countries, and between member countries of the Bank and developed countries;

Instrument of co-operation with UNIDO: - - -

Basic fields of activity: - - -

Areas identified for co-operation with UNIDO:

Although no formal instrument of co-operation so far has been established between OPEC and UNIDO, programmes of co-operation have already been and are being implemented especially with the OPEC Fund, particularly in the development of energy. They are also involved, on bilateral basis, in providing assistance to developing countries to accelerate their industrialization. The OPEC Fund was established in 1976 with the aim to provide financial assistance on highly concessional terms to developing countries. The initial endowment was US$ 800 million. Later the amount was raised to more than US$ 1.6 billion. The objective of the Fund is to promote the economic development as well as the international solidarity of the Third World. It was suggested that UNIDO could develop and implement industrial programmes/projects in the developing countries, financed either through grants and/or loans from the Fund.
